Program:

"EMPEROR OF THE NORTH"

A tense, finely-crafted action melodrama set in the hobo jungles and on the freight trains of the Great Northwest during the Depression. The film is a tale of survival and a game of king-of-the-hill played by grown men. The greatest hobo of the times, known as A-Number One (played by Lee Marvin) decided to battle the world's most sadistic train conductor, the Shack (Ernest Borgnine in one of his most villainous performances) by riding the Shack's train into Eugene, Oregon. Suspense gives way to action as the men battle it out with chains atop fast-moving trains.
